Art Unit: 1714

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1, 3, 28, 30, 37, 39 and 46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Improper Markush language is recited in claim 1 and "or" in line 4 should be "and". The recited "---ter-polymer of (i) a material selected from the group consisting of carboxylic acid, ---", for example, in claim 1 is incorrect and indefinite in not specifying particular acids since oxalic acid which falls within the scope of said carboxylic acid cannot polymerize with (ii). Also, sulfonic and phosphonic acids do not necessarily polymerize absent further limitation or definition. The recited "and adhesives" in line 2 of claims 3, 28, 37 and 46 is confusing and indefinite absent a particular cement. Also, it is unclear with respect to the composition of various mortars in claims 3, 28, 37 and 46. What is difference between manually applied mortars and joint cement, for example? The recited formulae of claim 30 and 39 are indefinite absent any definition for c, d and e.

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-47 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-16 of U.S. Patent No. 6,444,747. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because claims 1 and 10 of said patent recite "[a] composition comprising" which permits the presence of other components and since said patent teaches the use of the polymer as rheology modifiers for concrete and cement additives at col. 1, lines 7-8. Thus, it would be obvious to employ various cements in the composition of said patent.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 1714

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Chen et al (US 6,444,747).

Chen et al teach the instant co- and ter-polymers throughout the patent, especially in examples, and their use as rheology modifiers for concrete and cement additives at col. 1, lines 7-8. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.

Claims 30-47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Tanaka et al (US 5,661,206) or EP 0 448 717.

Note that the recited formulae encompass a polymer of the repeating unit c only absent any definition for c, d and e. Tanaka et al and EP teach various acrylate-functional polymers and their use in concrete and cement in abstract and examples. Thus, the instant invention lacks novelty.
